

Tuesday 26th January 2021

FANTASTIC

Trees loomed over a dying fire, where a semiconscious man lay bleeding out. The man's chest was oozing with thick, crimson blood from a gaping wound that pierced right through his leather tunic, skin and ribcage. He was bleeding after a demon bear tried to rip out his weak heart, when it attacked the camp.

The smell of smoke, pine and blood filled the air as the man's son, Torak, peered from his hiding place into the deep, dark forest, where he searched for the bloody beast. Would it come back for him? How long did his father have left? Fear rooted him to the spot; Torak had a tough decision to make.

Matthew (Yew class)