

Wolf Brother Alternative Opening Description

By Molly (Willow)

Deep in the forest, it was eerily quiet. It was dark. It was cold. Torak was sleeping when we woke suddenly. He was dazed and confused by the events of yesterday. Shock, fear, sadness, anger. He wanted to kill the bear. Where was that beast now?

Now, he was aching all over. He was in pain. His body was sore, hurt and swollen. He was badly battered and bruised like a punch bag.

Yesterday, Torak and his Dad had been having a laugh and setting up camp. But then, BOOM, there was an eruption of screeching sounds from the Ravens. It was an explosion. Then, the bear had pounced on Dad.

Fiercely, the wild animal threw him about like a rag doll. It was fierce and angry. Clearly, it wanted to kill him. Tearing viscously into his skin like a piece of meat, it tore Dad's body to shreds.